Jul 24 – Perispiritual Relationships in Suicide Contexts

@ 5 pm – Julio Padovan (Guest Speaker)

A suicide is defined as an act of violence against oneself followed by traumatic repercussions to the victim's relations. It is no different than any other attempt against the physical body which results in its demise. Yet, Spiritism, which is neither judgmental of suicides nor condemns the act, is especially concerned with this behavior. Why? What is there in a suicidal attempt, and worst, in this form of death, which places it in a category of its own and provoke so much agitation? It turns out the human definition of suicide is incomplete at best. By spiritual standards, a suicide is a violent act not against oneself but rather against the Self, followed by perispiritual destabilization of the individuals related to the victim which stretch far beyond a traumatic event. If you would like to know more about the relationship between perispirit and suicide and understand this deceptively simple play with words presented here, join us for a lecture and discussion on this topic under spiritist guidelines. -> ZOOM MEETING
