Do certain individuals really possess the gift of healing by simple touch?

"Their magnetic power may act to that extent when it is aided by purity of sentiments and an ardent desire to do good, for then good spirits come to their aid. It is, necessary however, to distrust the way stories are told by very gullible or enthusiastic individuals, who are always ready to see the miraculous in the simplest and most natural things. One must always distrust the selfish claims of persons who exploit credulity for their own profit."
